JOSEPH M. FRANCIS SUCCEUMS TO LONG ILLNESS

On the sunny hillside of his boyhood home where he romped and played in joyful glee in childhood, Joseph M. Francis, the beloved supervisor, was tenderly laid to rest Thursday morning last. Friends who have known and loved him in life came from all sections to pay their final respects to the good man and as they turned from the little cemetery on the sunny slopes overlooking the expansive Pacific many tears were shed and many prayers were offered for Joseph Francis.

Never before were there such a large number of people in the little town of Halfmoon Bay. The streets were thronged before the hour for the funeral arrived. The Catholic church was unable to accommodate the crowd, many having to remain outside.

Father Kevany sang the high mass at its conclusion Father Kevany paid a beautiful tribute to the life and character of the deceased, saying that his life was worthy of emulation by every young man.

The following old-time friends were the active pall-bearers:

Alvin Hatch, James Mosconi, M. J. Bettencourt, Franklin Swart, Dr. J. C. McGovern and M. Bello and the honorary pall-bearers were Judge George H. Buck, John MacBain, Dr. W. A. Brooke, T. C. Johnson, Andrew Gilcrest and James T. Casey. Joseph M. Francis died at Adler's Sanitarium last Monday afternoon, following an illness of several months. While his death was not unexpected, yet it was a severe shock to his friends.

Mr. Francis held the position of supervisor of the Fourth township for a period of twelve years. He had no opposition for re-election for the past eight years.

Joseph M. Francis was beloved and admired by all who knew him. The whole county mourns his loss.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Angie Francis and a daughter, Norma Francis.

The great wealth of floral tributes showed the high esteem in which he was held by his friends.

Joseph M. Francis was born in Halfmoon Bay in 1872 and grew to manhood there.

GOOD DUCK SHOOTING PROMISED

The open season for wild duck shooting, which commences today, promises good results for the devotees of the shotgun, and a large number of hunters will be in the marshes anxiously awaiting the first streaks of daylight. One month ago thousands of sprig ducks could be seen flying from the bay to the Spring Valley lakes every day, but they soon departed for the south and gloom pervaded the ranks of the boys and men who yearly follow the sport of kings. Later climatic conditions have resulted in a marked change. The Yukon country in Alaska is in the grip of winter and very severe storms have been raging throughout Washington and Oregon, with the result that thousands of birds have flown south. The rice fields and the river country about Suisun are reported alive with the webfoots, which will unquestionably make good shooting about the bay.

George, Louis and Jack Genocchio and Billy Williamson will hunt at Alvarado. Billy Carnduff, his boy, Will Casey, Charles and Eddie Gould, Claude Fox and Grant Jones will scull the bay. Although some of these are in the grandfather class you can look to all of them for limit bags. The younger generation will shoot over decoys on the bay shore. Guy P. Hull has had so many offers from gun clubs to be their guest for the opening day that he is at a loss which one to accept. The editor of this paper will not don his gun boots, for he has been promised a brace of fine spring from a man who never fails to bring home the limit.

NOTED ACTRESS WITH HER COMPANY IN THIS CITY

Pauline Fredericks, the famous moving picture actress, with a company of eighteen noted men and women actors and actresses, has taken apartments at the Sequoia and will remain in Redwood City for several days. They are taking a picture which requires old English scenes and interiors which will be taken at the James L. Flood home on the Middlefield road. The Flood home is one of the show places of the county.

SAN MATEO COUNTY TEACHERS' INSTITUTE

The annual convention of the teachers of San Mateo county was called to order in the beautiful assembly hall of the South San Francisco high school last Monday morning at 9 o'clock by County Superintendent Roy W. Cloude. The exercises were opened pleasantly and patriotically by all, under the leadership of Otis M. Carrington, singing "The Star Spangled Banner." The willing helper, B. E. Myers, of Redwood City, acted as secretary.

The presiding officer, Mr. Cloude, called the roll of 264 kindergarten, elementary and high school teachers, very few of whom were found to be absent or tardy.

Nearly all were present and a cursory glance around upon them found abundant evidence that the recent increases of salaries had produced a charming improvement in the appearance of everyone. Not a sign of struggling to present a neat appearance or any hopeless or forlorn countenance was in evidence. Instead, dainty, new, rich and modish apparel pleased the artistic eye and gave each wearer becoming poise, confidence and contentment. There was no appearance of extravagance. Every adornment was so fittingly placed as the rose in a garden. Never before did the general intelligence beam out so serenely. It was very plain that the appreciation shown to the teachers had done a world of good. Many remembered that five years before, the time of the world's fair, the institute had been held in South San Francisco for the first time. Then the teachers had to be made for the accommodations that had to serve. Picture galleries, public halls or anything were used at that time. This year no explaining was necessary, as all appointments were up to the highest standard. Besides appropriate decorations, including vases and jars of numerous and rare dahlias added not a little to the teachers' pleasure. Truly the advancement and improvement made by South San Francisco during the last five years is phenomenal.

During an intermission between talks Superintendent Cloude spoke of the professional need of each teacher making the following voluntary contributions: teachers' permanent organization, $1; state teachers' association, $2; national teachers' association, $2; constitutional amendment, $1.60. There are always calls for everyone to meet. At noon each day of the institute a delicious lunch was served at a nominal price. This was both a convenience and a necessity and was greatly appreciated.

The teachers of South San Francisco gave a reception to the visiting teachers on Monday afternoon at the close of the sessions. The coffee and delicacies were fully enjoyed. The hosts and hostesses deserved the many compliments they received. Other speakers and instructors were: Sam H. Cohn, state statistician of education; Elizabeth B. Snell, Stanford appointment secretary; Dr. Celelia D. Mosher, Stanford medical advisor of women; and Arthur H. Chamberlain, editor "Sierra Educational News."

Resolved that this institute proclaim to all the people of the county that the office of the County School Superintendent is fully as important in its duties and more so in its achievements than any other county office and, being so, it is but eminently fair and just that the salary thereof should be equal to that of the best paid county office, instead of being as it is, now, the poorest paid.

The responsibilities of the office demand the services of a superior person who is entitled to a reasonable recompense. It is not right that the commander-in-chief should be paid less than his lieutenants.

Resolved that school officials be urged to make such rules and regulations that an experienced teacher of the county changing his or her position from one school to another may not be subject to the loss of the July salary.

Resolved that this institute recognize the willing and able friendship rendered to teachers by Supervisors W. H. Brown and Joseph M. Francis and call away, extend to their bereaved wives, Mrs. Rosalie Brown and Mrs. Angelina Francis, sincere sympathy.

COUNTY BOARD IN REGULAR SESSION

At the meeting of the board of supervisors Monday an application for the position of acting horticultural commissioner was read from R. D. Hartman of San Francisco. The board decided to take the matter up at the afternoon session. When the matter came up the board met with Mr. Hartman and after considering the application decided not to take any action.

On motion of Thompson, seconded by Hickey, the board appointed Dr. C. S. Cochran county dentist at a salary of $70 a month, the application of Dr. Cochran having been approved by the county social service commission.

A communication was received from Mrs. Julia Fassler relative to a claim she had before the board for some time for damages to her property on the Pomona creek on the coast side of the county during the reconstruction of a county highway. In compliance with the request of the board as to the value of her land, Mrs. Fassler stated that the land had been assessed at different prices—$9.50, $10 and $11.60. She said she would leave it to the discretion of the board as to what she should be allowed.

Dr. Thompson, who had investigated the situation, reported that about one-third of an acre of land had been damaged by the building of the road and that he considered that $50 would be a reasonable sum to allow Mrs. Fassler.

On motion of Mrs. Brown, seconded by Dr. Thompson, the above sum was accordingly allowed Mrs. Fassler out of the general fund of the county.

The following report was received from W. J. Graef, inspector for the United States public health service, of the squirrel control work conducted in San Mateo county during September under the supervision of the above service:

Number of inspections..... 25
Acres reinspected..... 13,794
Acres treated..... 1,590
Pounds of poisoned grain used, 1,150
County Auditor J. J. Shields submitted his report showing the condition of the different funds of the county at the present time. The report was ordered filed.

On motion of Mrs. Brown, seconded by Hickey, two claims, one of J. A. Foster in the sum of $49.60, and the other of the Atlas Electric Company in the sum of $74, both being claims for damages to property by wiring election booths in the second township, were ordered returned to the above parties with a request that they submit revised claims, giving an itemized statement of the number of hours of work performed and the cost per hour.

A claim of Dr. J. P. H. Dykes of Redwood City in the sum of $141.04 for services rendered a person named C. H. Lucas, the victim of an assault several months ago, was rejected by the board on motion of Hickey, seconded by Mrs. Brown, the supervisors taking the stand that the claim was not a proper one against the county.

Following the news of the passing of Supervisor Joseph M. Francis at the Adler Sanitarium in San Francisco, the board, on motion of Hickey, seconded by Thompson, voted that when it adjourned it would do so in respect to the memory of the late representative from the fourth township.

Chairman MacBain addressed the board and stated that he was having repairs made to the La Honda road in his district and in order to do so successfully might find it necessary to close the thoroughfare for a short period. He requested that permission be given him to do this. The request was granted, on motion of Mr. Hickey, seconded by Mrs. Brown, the understanding being that persons living along the road would be permitted to get to and from their homes. Chairman MacBain also explained that at least two weeks' notice would be given if it were found necessary to close the road.

Lambert & Walter this week sold the De Bernardi place on Eaton avenue. Just outside the city limits, consisting of five acres of land planted to fruit trees, to E. L. Kilbourne of San Francisco, who will occupy the pretty home at once. The reported price of the realty is said to be $11,000. The property lies on the sunny slopes back of La Honda in the New Hampshire hills. Both Lambert & Walter report that they have a large sale pending that will be made known next week.

Thomas Carlin, better known as San Gregorio Tom, passed away at the old soldiers' home at Sausalito on September 20 last. He was a veteran of the civil war and was a boyhood chum of the late Admiral George Dewey in New Hampshire. Tom was very fond of telling of the pranks of young Dewey at his home in the New Hampshire hills. Both were classmates in the little red schoolhouse.

Tom had been a resident of La Honda and San Gregorio for over 40 years. In the early days of the county he worked in the lumber mills and saw mills of that section. Tom was well known in Redwood City, where he often visited. Two years ago he had his right arm amputated. He had been a resident of the home for the past four months. He was afflicted with cancer.

THE WEEK'S EVENTS IN LOCAL CIRCLES

Miss Agnes Gilcrest, a teacher in the Halfmoon Bay grammar schools, is visiting Miss Irene and Lorraine Dickie in Redwood City.

Mrs. Louis Beer, wife of Edwin S. Beer, passed away yesterday after a long illness. Mrs. Beer was born and raised in Redwood City and was formerly Miss Louis Madsen. She was a sister of Mrs. George McNulty. Mrs. Beer is survived by her husband. No arrangements have yet been made for the funeral.

Alexander M. Robertson, who maintains a beautiful home in this city will celebrate the fiftieth year as a bookseller and publisher in San Francisco at a dinner to be given in his honor by the Booksellers' Association of San Francisco in the palm room of Hotel Bellevue on the evening of October 30.

Walton Maloney the popular young business man of this city, will be united in marriage to Miss Ida Meyn of San Francisco on November 7. John Cullen of Menlo Park is to attend the groom at the wedding.

A straw vote was taken in the senatorial fight during the week in Redwood City with the result: Samuel Stratridge, 325; James D. Reelan, 115. This shows which way the wind is blowing. Shortridge's friends believe he will carry the county by a plurality of 5000.

Guy P. Hull, the popular hard-war man and Professor A. E. Monlieth left yesterday for Colma to be on hand early on the opening day of the duck season, October 16. They are both good hunters and crack shots. Their many friends contemplate duck dinners on their return to Redwood City.

Mrs. Ernestine Glolow, a former old resident of Redwood City, died at her home in Berkeley last Tuesday. She was a native of Germany, aged 82 years. Herself and family resided in Redwood City 35 years ago. Mr. Glolow being a captain of a schooner plying between this city and San Francisco. She was the mother of Mrs. G. C. Bauchman, Mrs. A. E. Heustler, Charles H. Ernest F. and George C. Glolow. All old settlers remember the family.

During the week the state railroad commissioners sent notice to local business men that the ban had been taken off sign lights and store windows. Heretofore electric lights were prohibited in this way, owing to the power shortage. The recent rains have caused streams to rise in the mountains, giving sufficient water to run the power plants.

Each day of the week the church in Redwood City from England on Thursday. She was accompanied by her three children. Mrs. Thompson left here last May to visit her girlhood home at Hyde, near Manchester. She had a delightful time, but is glad to get home to sunny California. She says there is considerable unrest in England, many of the people being desirous of emigrating to the United States.

Mrs. John Dielman and Miss L. Millard left Thursday morning for Sacramento to spend a few days.

Mr. Sumner, the contractor for the new postoffice building, will finish his work next week and will soon after turn the building over to the owner. It is believed that Uncle Sam will occupy his new quarters by December 1.

Sister Mary of the Angels, who recently celebrated the 50th anniversary of her religious vows in the Academy of Santa Clara, was on the staff of the Notre Dame convent in this city. She is affectionately recalled by many of the early students of that institution.

Mr. John J. Japer of 716 Hopkins avenue spent the week end with their daughter, Neva, who is a boarder at the Dominican convent at San Rafael.

EX-SENATOR RAMBO DIES
AT BOULDER CREEK

S. H. Rambo, former state senator from this district, passed away at his home in Boulder Creek on Monday at the ripe old age of 77 years. Rambo represented this county in the senate of the 36th and 37th general assemblies. He was a Republican and was succeeded by Holohan, now United States marshal. There was quite a rumormongering in the Republican convention at Santa Cruz in 1904. The late Henry Ward Brown was tendered the nomination for senator by one faction of the convention, but refused the offer. Some time after the members of the convention met in Redwood City and nominated Rambo, who defeated Edward White, now immigration commissioner at San Francisco. Rambo was placed in nomination by Duncan McPherson of Santa Cruz. Rambo was supervisor of Santa Cruz county for eight years. He came to the latter county in 1882.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1920

FOR PRESIDENT—
WARREN G. HARDING

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT—
CALVIN COOLIDGE

FOR UNITED STATES SENATOR
SAMUEL M. SHORTRIDGE

FOR CONGRESS 8th DISTRICT
ARTHUR M. FREE

ARTHUR M. FREE

The Republican party of San Mateo is urged to give Arthur M. Free a rousing vote. Harding will carry the county with 5,000 votes and Mr. Free's should be even greater. He is a young man of ability, well-qualified for the position and should receive the hearty support of every Republican elector. Let his vote in San Mateo county be overwhelming.

LETTER FOR SHORTRIDGE

Hon James N. Gillette, former governor of California, in speaking to an audience that filled Dreamland Rink, San Francisco, at the Republican rally Monday night, of the necessity of electing Samuel M. Shortridge to the United States senate to uphold the hands of President Harding, said: "There is now no doubt over the election of Senator Harding. There is no doubt about Republican control of the house of representatives. But there is doubt about Republican control of the senate, that's where our great fight is now. If the Democrats control the senate they will organize all the committees and prevent absolutely any reform measures the Republican administration can offer. They can block our tariff bill, our merchant marine bill, they can prevent rejection of the league of nations and dictate our foreign relations. There is only one way to meet this situation and that is through the election of Republican senators where now we have Democrats. All the east is looking tonight to California. They want Sam Shortridge. They want him to sit beside Hiram W. Johnson and help put through the Republican reforms. If we're going to do it, we are going to give Harding 200,000 majority and how any Democratic senator can squeeze through under a majority like that is more than I can see."

THE SENATE SITUATION

The platform of Samuel M. Shortridge, Republican candidate for the United States senate, is considered by Republicans and Democrats of the San Joaquin valley as the strongest ever presented to the voters of this state and leaders of both parties claim that Shortridge will win a decisive victory as a result of his firm stand on such vital issues as the protective tariff, the Wilson league of nations and Asiatic immigration. Reports received at Republican headquarters from all counties in the San Joaquin indicate an increasing sentiment for Shortridge. Farmers, vineyardists, cotton growers, bean growers and canners, together with wool men and hide sellers and buyers, have come to the front during the last week as not only favoring the election of Shortridge because of his stand on the tariff, but they are working personally to insure his election.

The Japanese question is one upon which every Californian agrees, so it is not an issue in the campaign. The issues are the tariff and the league of nations. The tariff question is uppermost in the minds of the voters in the San Joaquin valley.

California wants and needs a protective tariff—a tariff that will foster California industries and protect California farmers, growers and labor. California can receive this protection by putting Samuel Shortridge

HARDING---COOLIDGE---SHORTRIDGE

Elect Samuel M. Shortridge to the United States senate.
Elect him because he will support the policies of Warren G. Harding.
Elect him because he will make it his business to restore a tariff that will protect the American market for American products.
Elect him because his opponent is a free-trader.
Elect him because he will do something on the Japanese question.
Elect him because a Democrat will be of no earthly use to California in Washington during the next four years.
Elect him because his opponent will vote FOR the Wilson league.
Elect him because he has the full endorsement of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Governor William D. Stephens, Congressman John I. Nolan and President P. H. McCarthy of the State Building Trades Council.

in the senate alongside Hiram W. Johnson. With the election of Mr. Shortridge, California will be able to back up a Republican president and a Republican congress. Without his election the state will be crippled.

Phelan is a free trader. His remarks in San Jose, where he opposed a tariff on lemons, and his speech at San Luis Obispo, where he said he favored a tariff of 1-2 cent on lemons, and his non-committal speech in Ventura, have injured his chances for re-election.

PRESS COMMENTS

Senator Harding's recent speeches on labor and agriculture are impressive and leave the reader convinced that the candidate is earnest and sincere in his desire, from the position of great influence to which he is likely soon to be elevated, to help his fellow man to help himself.—Alameda Times-Star.

Governor Cox assumed the mantle of Wilson at the white house conference some weeks ago and he stands today as the advocate of every one of the malodorous policies that have disgraced the government of the United States for the past seven years.—Stockton Index.

Harding being conservative and free from radicalism will inspire confidence in all classes and capital will not be afraid to invest in large enterprises and business will find a solid foundation.—Winters Enterprise.

There are many other issues of more or less importance in the campaign. But there is none which is more commanding than this—one man government, or truly representative government. The Democratic party stands for the former. Its candidate has Wilson's "Okech." To get it he had to accept "Wilsonism." The Republican party promises a return to a truly representative system, with the president as the central figure of the government, but not a giant among pygmies.—Santa Cruz Sentinel.

Governor Coolidge is carrying himself in the campaign with great dignity. His speeches are brief and always to the point. There is the note of conviction in everything he says.—San Francisco Argonaut.

As the campaign for president advances it is apparent that Harding and Coolidge get the independent, calm, non-partisan vote of the country. There were people who thought the voters who favored the league of nations compact, as decided upon by President Wilson, would take votes from Harding. There never was a greater error.—Riverside Enterprise.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was taken to fill in the Democratic national ticket because his name was Roosevelt. If it had been anything else he probably would not have been thought of.—Richmond Independent.

Governor Cox's charge that the Republican national committee has organized a conspiracy of silence against him so that the newspapers in the cities he visits do not accord him the publicity he thinks he merits is on a par with the rest of his campaign program. The facts are that Cox has talked himself out. He is not saying anything new and therefore has ceased to be news.—Los Angeles Times.

The issue between the Democratic and Republican parties on international questions in this campaign may be summarized as follows: The Democratic party stands for the perpetuation of the Wilson policy of one-man control in international affairs. The Republican party believes that treaties of peace should be in accordance with American constitutional provisions and in harmony with the American precedents and traditions.—Ventura Free Press.

What do our Democratic friends think of the Maine elections? It was not decisive, of course. So says Mr. Cox, whose voice is heard above a million others almost every day. So says the friend and adviser of Mr. Cox, the delectable Mr. Murphy of New York. Otherwise the country is pretty well agreed that the Rubicon was crossed on that fateful night in Maine.—San Jose Mercury-Herald.

Governor Cox is directing the bulk of his criticism at what he chooses to term "the reactionary control of the Republican party." But the word "reaction" has assumed a new meaning within recent years in the minds of the people. Reactions are not necessarily bad. The reaction from war to peace; the reaction from radicalism to conservatism; the reaction from internationalism to Americanism; and the reaction from Wilsonism to the Republicanism of the pre-Wilson era. Each and every one of these reactions will be assured by the election of Senator Harding.—Eureka Times.

Senator Harding's reply to the California delegation gave a pledge that as head of the Republican administration he will recognize the oriental immigration problem of the Pacific coast as a national question to be dealt with in conformity to the ideal "America first." All who have thought about the situation beyond the interests of the moment will agree with Senator Harding that "No one can contemplate the future of this republic without anxiety for abundant provision for admission to our shores of only the immigrant who can be assimilated."—Oakland Enquirer.

It will be remembered that Mr. Cox has expressly declared his advocacy of the government ownership of all public utilities except agriculture. While it will be the effort of campaign managers to ignore and depreciate this assertion of policy, yet it will be apparent to the voters of the country that such is the conception of the proper prerogatives of government and that so far as it lies in his power he will extend the authority of the federal government with its attendant increased cost of operation, decreased efficiency and discouragement of individual enterprise.—Petaluma Argus.

Harding has dispelled all doubt concerning his attitude toward the league of nations. Utterly impotent, he said, utterly dead, it has failed to function. Scrap the league, he says. It is but a means for diplomats and politicians to further the interests of their own country.—Blythe Review.

Harding and Coolidge have been consistently the advocates of the reforms dear to the hearts of women. Cox and Roosevelt are the opportunists who play a double game on all issues and use words as a smoke-screen to hide their opportunism.—Riverside Press.

Senator Harding discussed two subjects of interest to Californians. The first subject is that of protection for California products. Senator Harding dwelt on the fact that the time has come when the United States is ceasing to be a food exporting nation and must look to establishing a guarantee that it be self-sustaining. The other subject which Senator Harding discussed was the Japanese problem. Senator Harding will not, as was to be expected, play jingo politics with this delicate question, but he does say in sober, earnest manner that the nation owes it to the Pacific coast states to stand behind them in necessary measures consistent with our national honor to relieve them of their difficulties.—Oakland Tribune.

James M. Cox is before the people as the exponent of the league of nations and of Wilsonism—two heavy loads to carry. If Cox be sincere, a vote for him is a vote for continuation of Wilson's policies, from which the country long has suffered.—Sacramento Bee.

We have been under a one-man government. A "single track mind" had dominated the situation. Heads of departments have not dared to assume responsibility. Cabinet officers have existed merely to record the imperial will. Until the people at the polls overthrow the Democratic congress it had functioned as a rubber stamp functions in the hand of a dictator. We agree with Senator Harding that the country has had enough of this sort of thing.

—Long Beach Telegraph.

The result of the sweeping Republican vote in the Maine election is the forerunner of what will happen at the general election. The league of nations was the chief issue and the big vote against it proves that the people believe in being American first, last and all the time.—Cottonwood Enterprise.

The president of the United States, while elected by one party, is president of all the people and needs to be a man big enough to rise above his party prejudices and be perfectly fair to all sections and all shades of political creeds. So far, while some have charged Harding with too much conservatism, as a fair man big enough to safely fill the president's chair and he is growing on the American people. Governor Cox is not making such progress. On the contrary, to the disappointment of many who had hoped that if he should be elected the country would be in the hands of an able and efficient executive, Cox is stooping to mudslinging methods, an unfair use of facts and figures not at all in keeping with the demands of even the most progressive Americans.—Lemoore Advance.

Let nobody again accuse Senator Harding of "pussyfooting" on the question of the league of nations. Whether the Republican platform declaration was specific or not, the Ohio statesman's ringing statement made while addressing a delegation of Minnesota Republicans will stand through his campaign as the interpretation of that declaration, and there is not a word of doubtful meaning in all that he said. The league has been scrapped, completely.—San Bernardino Sun.

ITEMS OF INTEREST FROM COURT HOUSE

An application for the position of acting horticultural commissioner was read from R. D. Hartman of Los Gatos. The board decided to take the matter up at the afternoon session.

The first matter taken up with the board was the application of R. D.
Hartman for the position of acting county horticultural commissioner, laid over from the morning session.
Hartman was present at the meeting and addressed the supervisors relative to the position and after discussion on the part of the members, it was decided not to take any action with regard to the application.

On motion of Thompson, seconded by Hickey, the board appointed Dr.
C. S. Cochran county dentist at a salary of $70 a month, the application of Dr. Cochran having been approved by the County Social Service Commission.

A communication was received from Mrs. Julia Fessler, relative to a claim she had before the board for some time for damages to her property on the Pomona creek on the coastside of the county during the reconstruction of a county highway.
In compliance with the request of the board, as to the value of her land Mrs. Fessler stated that the land had been assessed at different prices—$9.50, $10 and $11.60. She said she would leave it to the discretion of the board as to what she should be allowed.

Dr. Thompson, who had investigated the situation reported that about one-third of an acre of land had been damaged by the building of the road and that he considered that $50 would be a reasonable sum to allow Mrs. Fessler.

On motion of Mrs. Brown, seconded by Dr. Thompson, the above sum was accordingly allowed Mrs. Fessler out of the general fund of the county.

The following report was received from W. J. Graef, inspector for the U. S. Public Health Service, of the squirrel control measure conducted in San Mateo county under the supervision of the above service during the month of September, 1920.

No. of inspections 25
Acres reinspected 13,796
Acres treated 1,590
Pounds of poison used 1,150
County Auditor J. J. Shields submitted his report showing the state of the different funds of the county at the present time. The report was ordered filed.

On motion of Mrs. Brown, seconded by Hickey, two claims, one of A. J. Foster in the sum of $49.99 and the other of the Atlas Electric company in the sum of $74, both being for wiring election booths in the Second township, were ordered returned to the above parties with a request that they submit revised claims, giving an itemized statement of the number of hours work performed and the cost per hour.

A claim of Dr. J. H. P. Dykes of Redwood City in the sum of $141.04 for services rendered a person named C. H. Lucas, the victim of an assault several months ago, was rejected by the board, on motion of Hickey, seconded by Mrs. Brown, the supervisors not taking the claim as the claim was not a proper one against the county.

Following the news of the passing of Supervisor Jos. M. Francis at the Adler's Sanitarium in San Francisco, the board, on motion of Hickey, seconded by Thompson, voted that when it adjourned it would do so out of respect to the memory of the late representative from the Fourth township.

Chairman MacBain addressed the board and stated that he was having repairs made to the La Honda road in his district and in order to do so successfully, might find it necessary to close the thoroughfare for a short period. He requested that permission be given him to do this. The request was granted, on motion of Hickey, seconded by Mrs. Brown, the understanding being that persons living along the road would be permitted to get to and from their homes. Chairman MacBain also explained that at least two weeks' notice would be given if it were found necessary to close the road.

REGISTRATION READY FOR NEXT ELECTION

County Clerk Elizabeth M. Nash has completed compiling the registration of the voters of the county.
This is quite a task, entailing much work and careful attention, but she has accomplished it with accuracy, showing her attention to detail. The number of voters registered for the November election is 14,453, being the largest registration in the history of the county. The registration by city and towns is as follows:

molished.

DUCK HUNTING REMINISCENCES

Story No. 24
Bill, my first pal, was a duck hunter.
The fact that I had lost the companionship of my first pal, "Bill," did not in the least tend to quench the spirit of "duckitis" within me.
"Twas a bitter disappointment, but for which I was in a great measure responsible, so my sorrow was in a small degree alleviated by the hope that some day we would again be together wading through the slough and tules in pursuit of the wild birds we loved so well to hunt.

"Bill" had played hooky from school in order to show me the nice, cool, shady places along the old McGarvey grade where the rabbits stayed out late, and he had been caught red-handed by his stepfather, Jack Stafford, and as a punishment for his transgression from the straight and narrow path he had been ordered to devote all his spare time after school and on Saturdays at the Pioneer Livestock Stable of which Mr. Stafford was one of the proprietors.

Now Jack Stafford was a man of very pronounced ideas. When once he made up his mind on any subject you might just as well endeavor to move the impragable Gibraltar as waste time trying to change his opinion. When once a friend of a man he would die fighting for him in the last ditch and never turn his back on the enemy and what enemy he might incur was of no account to him. He was a man of great courage and was not afraid of anyone who opposed him would last indefinitely.
Old time politicians who are still alive will bear me out in this assertion. Just ask Johnny Johnston or P. P. Chamberlain if I am not correct.

But, with all that, Jack Stafford had a big heart within him, and what is more, "Bill" and I knew it. As young as we were, we both had some ideas concerning diplomacy and I decided to use that weapon in an endeavor to establish ourselves again in the good graces of the man who had, temporarily at least, separated us. "Bill's" stepfather was very fond of ducks and geese and knew it. The rest was easy, although it took a little time to have the desired effect. When the result was accomplished my first pal and I danced in ecstasies of delight. It was a high time to give thanks to the good Lord. Mr. Stafford had been paying taxes into the school fund for some years in order that his stepson might acquire an education and that boy had played hooky.
Surely it looked like an unparalleled sin. What would you have done, my young duck hunter of today? Well, if you do not know, I'll tell you what we did. Ever mindful of the fact that Jack was an epicure on the wild duck question we put our heads together and laid out our plan. "Bill" did as he was bid and reported at the stable after school.
On Saturdays he was on the job from early morning until night and the harness and bugles were polished until they looked new again. Winter was fast approaching and we looked forward to the playing of our trump cards. At that time there was no law regulating the open and closed season and by the first of September the marshes were alive with the little green-wing teal. Believe me, no time was lost in carrying our plan into effect. As soon as the birds arrived I was after them. Down in Bushy Creek the little puddlers could always be found and the first flock had not yet fairly settled before I was on their trail. All my hunting at that time was done on foot. Sometimes I would only secure half a dozen and then again ten or twelve.
No matter how many fell to my little Number 12, half of them were for "Bill." I made it a point to make a personal delivery of them to the liv-erly stable and watched my chance to be sure that Jack Stafford was there when I did so.

Usually the first hunt of the season was not very successful, as I was over-anxious and consequently more or less nervous. The birds were in abundance, but too much haste in making a sneak often resulted in what we called a fluke shot. I remember well how I made a miserable failure of a splendid opportunity to make good at "stargazer bend" in Bushy Creek, so called after James Cochrane, one of the old pioneers who was somewhat of a duck hunter in those bygone days. He has long since passed over to his reward, but before the day was over ten beautiful little green wings were hanging on my duck strap. How proudly I wended my way homeward. Now for our diplomacy. Would it work out all right or not? That was the uppermost thought in my mind. Leaving five of the ducks at home for the folks I tied the other five on a string and started down the street for the Pioneer Livestock Stable. When the old engine house on Main street was reached I spotted Jack Stafford standing in the doorway of the stable. That was just what I wanted.
He must see me deliver those ducks.
As I write I can still hear his exclamation as he saw me, "What a splendid haul! The north side of the entrance as plainly as though it were but yesterday. He was smoking a cigar and per chance thinking of the political battle about to take place in November. I was thinking of something else. How was I going to be received?

Gathering courage I sauntered boldly across the street and walked into the stable.

"Is Lin in?" I asked as I started to pass the man whom we had decided to conquer with diplomacy. He did not answer me and I continued down the floor of the barn. Well, I knew that my plan was there, either washing a buggy or brushing off one of the horses, but I wanted to pave my way, break the ice, as we say.
That ice never broke. Things seemed more frigid as I walked along. There was a "Bill" in my money bag. I did not turn around, but was more than conscious that Jack Stafford's eyes were following my every move.

"Here are some ducks for you, Bill," I said as I passed the birds to him.

"All right," he replied, "I'll take them home at supper time."
I could not jeopardize our chances by standing and talking to him.
Turning, I passed out of the barn, dropped in at Henry Horton's shop and bought some powder and shot to reload my brass shells. As I worked preparing for the next hunt I was in anything but high spirits. Perhaps we had made a mistake. The cool reception I had received did not certainly give me much encouragement.
Would "Bill" ever be allowed to go hunting with me again? The next evening he passed me on the street and found time to exclaim, "Gee, the old man certainly enjoyed those ducks."

My hopes rose high. Unbeknown to me, within twenty-four hours diplomacy was working hard for the ultimate happiness of myself and my first pal, "Bill."

THE RECTOR SYSTEM OF GAS HEATING fills a long-felt want for a convenient means of heating homes and one that is, at the same time, economical in operation.

It starts and stops at the touch of a button in the same manner as the electric lights are turned on and off. Could anything be easier than that?

Gas is the fuel used and heat is generated at the radiator.
Thus, there is no heat lost through transmission from a distant central heating plant.

All burned gases are drawn through vent pipes by mechanical draught and discharged to outside air. Therefore, there is absolutely no odor in the room.

The economy of the system is a result of its unequalled efficiency and the ease with which the fuel consumption may be controlled. No big outlay of money in advance is required to insure your winter supply of fuel.

You owe it to yourself to investigate the Rector System before deciding on a heating plant for your home or place of business. We will gladly furnish an estimate and descriptive literature free upon request.
